POST UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT CHOOSES AGENCY FOR REBRANDING

WILLIAMSTOWN, N.J., June 9, 2008 – Adamus Media, a strategic marketing, design and branding agency based in Williamstown, N.J., announces it has been selected by Post University to rebrand the school’s identity and promote its main campus in Waterbury, Conn. This follows a campaign by Adamus Media to help the university launch its online education initiative two years ago – which resulted in 110 percent program enrollment.

Adamus Media will help Post rebrand itself through a variety of media techniques including direct mail and informational pieces, while using public relations to increase enrollment. The agency will also produce the university’s new “student view book” student guidebook.

“We’ve had demonstrable success in the past working with this agency, so it was an easy decision to use them to promote and rebrand the main campus,” said Marcelo Parravicini, director of marketing for Post University. “We are very impressed with agency’s professionalism, creativity and efficiency and we love working with their team.”
